Referring to the settlement of the long drawn out street railway fight in Cleveland, in which Mayor Tom Johnson has won out for the people as against the corporations, the Youngstown Telegram (Rep.) says editorially:

"Mayor Johnson is a Democrat, but the Telegram does not hesitate to commend him for his good work in connection with this long contest. He has fought the people's battle ably and successfully. However much we may differ with him in some respects, every citizen will give him credit for courage and ability in his long seven years' fight which has now been brought to a successful close."

The enemies of Roosevelt are doing their best to have him again become a candidate for the presidency by the action of the senate in publicly insulting the chief executive when his last message was read. If the present incumbent should be stung to the point that he would reconsider his declaration not to be a candidate for reelection it would likely result in his re-election for he would poll a large percentage of the Democratic vote as well as the bulk of the votes of his own party. The old adage that whom the gods would destroy they first make mad applies to the representatives of wealth now entrenched in the millionaires' club known as the United States senate.

The other day over in Mansfield where the Bill Williams have things all their own way the police ran in a fellow from Massillon, a railroad detective assisting in the work, because the railroad had a case, the Massillon man having impersonated one of its detectives down in the mining town of Salineville in Columbiana county. The story is that the Massillon man who impersonated a railroad detective got the town marshal of Salineville drunk, locked him up after taking his gun and badge away from him. Then the Massillon man went out on the street and meeting the mayor he told the chief executive of the town and conservator of the peace that the council had appointed him marshal to take the place of the marshal who had met the Massillon man and also his own disgrace, and the mayor proceeded to swear in the fellow. It was back to Salineville for the offender, and the officers gave assurance that there would be for him no escape as there was when he was first taken into custody in Wellsville farther down the railroad from Salineville. Somehow or other one can't help thinking that in Salineville they have a mayor who is easy when he accepts a stranger's story as to what council had been by way of appointing him. If Cab Farrell were living and still mayor of Salineville that would never have happened. Cab was from Missouri upon any and all occasions even remotely associated with his official duties. He died some years ago full of faith in the righteousness of the Populist cause and a firm conviction that a man in office should do his level best to serve the people who come up with the salary—Youngstown Vindicator.

LONGING FOR A CHANGE.

What a relief it would be if some day the United States should have a congress or the state of Ohio should have a legislature that would make a real honest attempt to cut down expenditures instead of spending most of its time devising means of raising more revenues or deciding on what to spend a real or fancied surplus. We have not had within the memory of man either a congress or a legislature that has even attempted economy.—Akron Beacon-Journal (Rep.) April 26.

COUNCIL COMMITTEE

On Law Held Conference With Property Holders Claiming Damages.

Messrs. Williams, Augst and Jollat, members of the council law committee, met in the engineer's office Wednesday night with City Solicitor Blake and Engineer Starrett for the purpose of a conference with several West South street property holders who presented claims for damages in various amounts to the council Monday evening. The property holders were Messrs. Harry E. Becker and John Martin and Mesdames Anna McGill and Viola L. Pilcher. These people are neighbors and when the street before their property was improved it was necessary to make a cut of several feet. In some instances the front part of these lots stand seven feet above the street and it will be necessary to build retaining walls in order to keep the ground between the front line and the foundations of the houses from sliding off and dropping to the street. Some of the houses are only about five feet from the sidewalk and very steep stairways will be necessary for the residents to reach their homes. The conference lasted for some time.

After the West South street people left Attorney John C. Welty was given an audience. He represented Mrs. Ella O. Allen, owning property in South Market street, who asks damages on account of a fill made in an alley adjacent to her property.

The members of the committee and the officers will take these cases under advisement and make their report soon to the council.

CITY CONTINGENT FUND DEPLETED

The habit of the council transferring money to different departments from the contingent fund will soon be stopped, for Councilman Folk, head of the finance committee and who keeps close touch with the finance of the city, says that this fund is almost depleted. The council has been asked by the servers to appropriate $2000 from this fund to them for the purpose of putting a covering over the Auditorium to keep the rain from coming through, but upon investigation Mr. Folk finds but $700 or $800 in the contingency fund. He will probably recommend that certificates of indebtedness be issued in order to bridge over the present financial difficulties until after the regular distribution of funds is made in July.

An aged knight of the wayside who said he was on his way to Zanesville, dropped unconscious and to all appearances, dead, on South Erie street in the vicinity of the Sallor hotel, this morning. A crowd of bystanders gathered about the man who after examination was found to be still alive. Patrolman Wissmar, who hurried to the scene of the excitement, called the patrol wagon and the man was taken to the city jail where he was attended by Dr. S. Hattery. The unknown had been suddenly stricken with an epileptic fit from which he speedily revived. His face was badly bruised by the fall.

After he had revived sufficiently to be able to speak, he told the officers that he was on his way to Zanesville. He had run out of transportation funds and was trampaling the journey. He said that he was occasionally afflicted with epilepsy which caused him to fall this morning. A ticket to Zanesville was procured for the aged wayfarer from the board of township trustees, and this afternoon he was able to take his departure.

BLIND COMMISSION

Not Yet Appointed by Judge Bow as Statute Is Reported Amended.

Probate Judge Bow said yesterday when asked if he had yet named the members of the commission which will act under the new blind pension law that he had delayed this as he had understood that the law had been amended and as he had received no copy of this amendment, if it had been passed, he did not know what effect it might have on the operation of the original measure. It is not likely, however, that the appointment of the commission will be delayed after the first of May as Judge Bow is anxious to see the law operative in this county. Other probate judges throughout the state have named the commissions for their counties and it is likely that Judge Bow will take a similar action within a short time. There are said to be many applications in for positions on the commission. No member is entitled to draw more than five days' pay, at the rate of $2 per day, during one year. Mileage at the rate of eight cents a mile is allowed.

near the forge and it is presumed by the firemen that a hot piece of scrap iron fell through a crevice in the planks and that the fire had been smoldering there for some time. It was discovered in its incipientcy, however, and was extinguished with a slight loss. A few of the planks were rendered useless.
